

CHURCH AND SOCIETY CCAP NKHOMA SYNOD PROGRAM

Church and Society CCAP Nkhoma Synod was established as department of the synod in 2004 to deal with social-economic issues particularly human rights issues. The department promotes democracy, good governance, and gender equality with institutions of similar mandate through advocacy, training, mediation, networking, empowerment and civic education for a vibrant and just Malawian Society. The Society is striving to consolidate Malawi's emergent democracy by raising awareness about roles and responsibilities in a democracy through community mobilization aimed at bridging the knowledge gap. Church and Society CCAP Nkhoma Synod department has implemented a number of donor funded projects. Notably, the organization is currently implementing a project on Issue Based Voter Education Campaign. It is being implemented in Lilongwe Rural, Dowa, Kasungu, Mchinji and Ntchisi district.

STRATEGIC FOCUS: THE COMMUNITY WE WANT!

Key Community Values

The challenge of declining morality in the community and the need to put in place a value system upon which the soul of the community is built and national interests anchored, has to be tackled head-on. Accordingly, we citizens have generated 8 Values upon which governance and development should be based. These are presented with indicators and suggestions of how they can be rebuilt and sustained.

Values

God Fearing; Hard Work; Equity; Tolerance; Honesty; Transparency & Accountability; Self-Respect; Gender Equity

Important Indicators

Respect for life and human dignity; Justice and Honesty ; Creativity and Innovation; Commitment to quality work; Enterprise; Shared Visions and Goals; Collective action and responsibility; Respect for the constitution and the rule of law; Balanced planning and investment incentives; Inclusion of clan leaders in lower levels of governance; Effective communication strategies; Effective systems of checks and balances; Sustained Civic Education and Exemplary Leadership

How we can rebuild and sustain it

Promotion of ‘divine’ ‘godly’ values; Freedom of Worship; Independent Religious Institutions ; Regional balance in terms of resource allocation and political representation; Social and economic justice in terms of rural-urban disparities and inequalities in terms of gender, people with disabilities, the elderly, and marginalization of ethnic minorities

3. CITIZENS’ POLICY DIRECTIVES AND PRINCIPLES

The constitution guarantees the sovereignty of citizens of Malawi in the governance of the country. This shows how central the citizens’ power is in governance and management of public affairs of the country. This categorically makes citizen’s involvement and participation in influencing public policy and governance a human right. It’s against this constitutional background that we citizen make the following directives:

- i. That all citizens, institutions and agencies of the state shall respect and uphold constitutionalism and the rule of law at all times;
- ii. That all Citizens especially those executing state functions shall respect and uphold human rights and human dignity as basic entitlements of humanity and civilization;
- iii. That the right to life and other human rights entail a commitment to provide livelihood to the citizens as a reflection of dignity that they aspire for. Constitutional provisions for rights to health, education, clean environment and development shall be translated into concrete actions to enhance livelihood and service delivery as human rights issues;

- iv. That all leaders shall be accountable to the citizens first and foremost, and accountability demands by the citizens for the exercise of political power and execution of social advancement programmes shall be made as a matter of tradition;
- v. That State policy shall make a direct commitment to deepening the decentralization process by removing all barriers to autonomy, legitimacy and independence. Local governments shall be availed a productive environment for pursuing the aspirations of their populations while reducing their dependence on the Central Government;
- vi. That Malawi's governance shall be guided by the need to ensure political pluralism and tolerance of divergent views. This system shall best be articulated by the multiparty form of Governance;
- vii. That all leaders shall ensure that they value and respond to the views expressed by citizens whether formally made through elected representatives or through other civic groups and actions. This will encourage citizens' use of peaceful, non-violent and acceptable means, for reforming or informing state policy through petitions, peaceful demonstrations, minimum agenda, citizens manifestos and other demands;
- viii. That the State and all its organs and agencies, political parties and civic organizations shall respect and support the need for regularity of free, fair elections and credible elections as part of Malawi's democratization process;
- ix. That the Government shall consider equity in the allocation of national development resources in order to remove the disparities in poverty index of the different regions of Malawi.

4. CITIZENS' STRATEGIC INTERESTS

These strategic citizens' interests are primarily for the community's survival and security, the pursuit of wealth and economic growth and power, and preservation of community heritage and culture. The country needs to act strategically in the best interest of its citizens. At the moment, issues facing the country are viewed through rather narrow individual or group lenses and this means that not enough attention is paid to the needs of Malawi as a whole.

The lack of strategic thinking also means the national policies often fail to be proactive and forward thinking. It is against this background that we the citizens push for these strategic interests below to guide state actors in formulation of strategic political, economic and development policies and programmes.

- I. Build a democratic society founded on Strong political institutions, democratic ideals such as constitutionalism, rule of law, respect and protection of civic and political liberties, and a recognition of and respect of the superiority of Citizens;
- II. Anchor the development of the country on agriculture with the state investing her resources towards research, mechanization, expansion and industrialization of the agricultural sector as the backbone for development;
- III. A strong uncompromised and uncompromising parliament that will independently execute its legislative and oversight role over the governance and management of the public affairs of the country;
- IV. Sustainable exploitation and protection of Malawi's natural resources from all forms of greed, abuse and misuse;
- V. Build a strong and vibrant Civil Society, free and independent media and a focused and strong opposition as pillars of democratic and accountable governance;
- VI. A moral economy founded on principles of national ownership, social justice and equity, and massive investment in human capital formation.
